

Be a Hero for a Better World

"One of the greatest feelings in the world is knowing that we as individuals can make a difference. Ending hunger in America is a goal that is literally within our grasp."

— Jeff Bridges

Jeff Bridges (1949-)

For more than 20 years, movie superstar Jeff Bridges has worked hard to raise consciousness about the possibility of ending world hunger. In the early 1980s he helped start the End Hunger Network, and has inspired and enlisted the help of many celebrities to help convince the public and the governments of the world that we can end world hunger if we make it a priority.

In recent years, the End Hunger Network has been focusing on hunger in America. In the 1980s, thanks to public will and government programs, hunger had been ended in America. But today more than 35 million Americans are hungry and 13 million are children. The End Hunger Network's goal is to end childhood hunger in America.

"Public charities, foodbanks and church pantries are doing more than ever before, but they can't keep up with the need. We can never end hunger only through the wonderful work of local charities. Like other Western democracies, we must end our national problem of hunger through national and political leadership. Charity is nice for some things, but not as a way to feed a nation. We don't protect our national security through charity, and we shouldn't protect our families and children that way either."

Jeff Bridges was born on December 4, 1949 in Los Angeles, California
